KOoyong CLASSIC HISTORY AWAITS.... BUT WAITS AGAIN UNTIL 2023

The organisers of the Kooyong Classic regret to announce their decision to cancel the event scheduled for January 2022.

In making the announcement Kooyong President Adam Cossar said. "We are disappointed having to make this decision but with the great deal of uncertainty over recent months about the arrangements that would be in place in January, it has not been possible to make the necessary plans to deliver the best and safest sporting and hospitality experience for our players, spectators, sponsors, broadcasters, members and event staff".

The positioning of the Kooyong Classic for over 33 years has provided players with the ideal preparation for the Australian Open and organisers look forward in 2023 to showcasing the dramatic facelift of Kooyong "The Spiritual Home of Australian Tennis" with new facilities offering players and spectators a significantly enhanced experience.

We thank everyone who has supported the tournament over the past 33 years and along with all event partners are looking forward to delivering a bigger and better and even brighter Kooyong Classic in 2023.

The Kooyong Classic is a three-day event played at the historic Kooyong venue that was home to the Australian Open until 1988.
